	Title	Methods for treating neurological deficits

Dear Sir:

1. I, James Fallon, declare and say I am a co-inventor of the claims of the above-identified patent application.

2. I understand that claims 1-7, 16, and 33 were rejected as anticipated by Alexi et al. ((May 1997) Neuroscience 78:73-86; "Alcxi").

3. As evidenced in paragraph 4, below, the invention as claimed was conceived and reduced to practice prior to May, 1997, i.e., prior to the effective date of Alexi.

4. The claimed invention of a method of attracting a glial progenitor cell, or a progeny of a glial progenitor cell, to a site of central nervous system lesion or damage, involving administering a compound that binds to an epidermal growth factor receptor, was conceived and reduced to practice before May 1997. The claimed invention is described in the doctoral thesis of Steven James Reid, which was deposited with the Office of Graduate Studies of the University of California at Irvine in March, 1997. A copy of Steven James Reid's thesis is provided herewith as Exhibit 4.

5. I hereby declare that all statements made herein of my own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title XVIII of the United States Code, and that such will false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any patent issuing thereon.
